CHAPTER ONE—“CATCHING THE RHYTHM OF GOD’S VOICE”

- What images or concepts come to mind when I hear the word vocation?
  - When, in my life, have I experienced the power of silence? Why is this so important in the discernment of one’s vocation?
  - How is a connection to others, especially the poor and oppressed, tied to my own vocation?
  - How might I be challenged to the way of relinquishment in my own life?
  - What can I do to more consciously create stillness in my life in order to “catch the rhythm of God’s voice”?

CHAPTER TWO—“VOCATION TO DISCIPLESHIP”

- What does it mean to say that the Christian vocation is a call to the fullness of life?
  - What understandings or insights have I gained from reading the personal stories of others’ vocational states in life?
  - How is my vocation, as I currently understand it, expressed in the different roles I have?
  - In what ways do the stories of others help me appreciate the place of vocation in my own faith journey?
  - How might I continue to say “yes” to Jesus’ call to follow him, letting that affect every “nook and cranny” of my life?

CHAPTER THREE—“CALLED TO HAPPINESS”

- How does the author suggest that the beatitudes impact the Christian vocation?
  - In what ways is the vocation to compassion a social vocation as well as a personal vocation?
  - What is the role of community in the process of vocational discernment?
  - How might I be challenged to more fully embrace the vocation to be poor in spirit?
  - How might I more consciously apply the principles of Catholic social teaching to my family, work life, neighborhood, parish community, and so on?

CHAPTER FOUR—“CALLED TO THE FULLNESS OF LIFE”

- In what areas and events of life do I find great hope?
  - What does the author mean by living “as if”? Why is this an important part of Christian living?
  - How can I bring and be the good news through the full expression of my own vocation?
  - How might I more intentionally participate in the healing of the world and, therefore, in my own healing?
  - What next step might I be called to in my own exploration of vocation?
