

Making Connections . . .

What happens in one part of the world affects people in other parts of the world. We are all members of one human and global community. The Gospel requires us to reach out to people in need both in the communities where we live and beyond the borders of those communities.

WITH LANGUAGE ARTS

Read the book Sadako and the Thousand Paper Cranes by Eleanor Coerr. Write a book report to share with your class. Visit other classrooms at your school, tell the story of Sadako, and teach others how to make paper cranes. The paper cranes can become peace symbols for your school community.

WITH MATHEMATICS

Huda has to find ways to provide transportation for the women refugees who are a part of Mosaada. This will enable the women to go on job interviews. Complete the problems on the handout to find out about costs of transportation.

WITH SOCIAL STUDIES

Huda's story and her work with women refugees is a true story. Research hunger and poverty throughout the world. Draw a map of the world that illustrates the disparity of resources around the world. Identify three different organizations, such as Catholic Relief Services, and learn how they work to alleviate hunger and poverty throughout the world.

Faith Action

Look around. Who are people living in hunger and poverty? Take one small step today to reach out to someone who needs your help.
